

Juridical [Society]

Overview

The listing for this society in the 1854-1855 Glasgow Post Office directory gives a brief summary of this group and its activities:

'[...] The Society meets in the Sheriff Court Hall, County Buildings, every Wednesday evening during the session, at a quarter past eight o'clock. Its principal object is the discussion and elucidation of disputed and undecided questions in law, with which is combined the preparation of essays on subjects of a legal and literary character'.

Of note is that the later listing for this group in the 1887 to 1888 directory does not mention any 'literary' aspect to the group's proceedings, which may or may not mean that by then it became more focused on juridical issues and less on 'subjects of a [...] literary character'. In the late nineteenth century, the term 'literary' still encompassed a wide range of subjects and included — but was by no means restricted to — literature:

'[...] The objects of this society are the discussion of legal cognate speculative subjects, and the consideration of questions of juridical interest. Admission to it is restricted to members of the legal profession and law students, and its meetings are held every Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, from November to April, in the Faculty buildings, St George's Place.'
